December 21, 2017 | Chelsea, MI

This January and February the Chelsea District Library sets the stage for local musicians with their annual winter music series, Sonic Sundays. Now in its seventh year, Sonic Sundays offers six musical performances at various locations around Chelsea. These diverse concerts feature everything from high school percussion ensembles to New Orleans' inspired music.

The 2018 series kicks-off on January 7, from 2-3pm, with a family oriented performance by Gemily at the Chelsea District Library McKune Room. This children's folk music trio is sure to delight families and kids with sing-along songs, cool instruments, and folk music from around the world. Sonic Sunday performances do not require registration and are appropriate for all ages.

Additional performances include:

January 14 | Percussion Ensembles Concert at the Chelsea High School
February 28 | A2SO Reed Trio at the Chelsea District Library
February 11 | Nutshell at the Chelsea District Library
February 18 | Mo'Easy at Jet's Pizza
February 25 | San, Emily, & Jacob at Silver Maples Retirement Community
