Title: Chelsea District Library Brings Comics Arts to Your Home!

Kids Read Comics, with its history of bringing fun, family-friendly, comic book artists to Chelsea, is going to be a little different this year. While a convention teeming with activity has been a hallmark of the event, this year we wanted everyone to be able to stay closer to home—even our special comic artist guest—Ted Woods! Ted has a special talent for beautiful black and white art, and his skills are a joy to watch!

Join us via Facebook Live on Monday nights at 6:30pm in October for Kids Read Comics, Home Toon Edition. We can't wait to watch Woods as he draws a brand new comic strip about Chelsea, MI and teaches a little bit about how you can draw your own comics! Each week CDL will bring comic creation to your home, your phone, wherever! Can't make the live event? Past editions will be viewable on the CDL website.

Throughout the month we invite you to test your own drawing skills with daily drawing prompts courtesy of Inktober, a web project developed by comics artist Jake Parker. Share your creations with us in the Kids Read Comics Facebook event or by emailing them to ref@chelseadistrictlibrary.org. We are thrilled to share participant creations on the Kids Read Comics website (chelseadistrictlibrary.org/krc). During an otherwise challenging year, we can all share a laugh or ooh and aah over beautiful comics art!
